

had filed the Beckwith newspapers.)

of them and the author with the romantic sounding name. (Myrtle Evers said that Medgar

And I was sure that Medgar Evers would have read the same letters and had some memory the newspapers, almost as if someday I was bound to find Byron de la Beckwith again.

bishophood of the Episcopal Church, his church. Fascinated with Beckwith's words I saved well as my close friends, Sam Tomlinson and Bert Ward, who planned to enter the about ministers being too liberal on the race question, a path I realized might include me as well as writing about segregation Beckwith also wrote about the Christian faith. He worried "Delay." Beckwith was from my old world, the South I was struggling to understand. As Ernst Borinski did not have the contacts to introduce me to someone like Beckwith.

matters like sociology then talk about segregation.